Open to Truth & Change is an installation exhibit that investigates the very essence and consequence of human perception by challenging viewers to evaluate their approach to their own perceptions.

Are we open to fully experiencing all that surrounds us by being open to a state of unknown? Or do we approach our physical surroundings and new ideas with a predetermined state of assumption, fear, and consequent aggression? Can we see the truth around us if we carry such assumptions? Are we further creating a world based on reality, or based on assumptions from a fear of not knowing the truth?

This exhibition asks: Are you prepared to break down your walls and ask yourself these questions? Are you open to come to perceive your perceptions, and above all, are you genuinely open to truth and change?

Get ready to have your perception challenged through a number of beautiful, immersive and interactive installation pieces by the following artists: Sarah Clough, Kayla Smith, Virginia Sperry, Bonnie Carrow, Brian Wessel, Nic Galloro, Khamari Smith, Derek Pentz, George Lori, Pamela Wilde.
